

The two greatest books on personal finance....

I have a large library on personal finance because two years ago I had to learn and put into format everything I knew about the subject.

Not only was I starting a personal finance coaching business, but I was also writing my own book on the topic.

These two books stood above the rest, and they helped me in countless ways.

I'll just quote directly from the Resource Section of my book (Household Finance 101) where I present a highly curated list of the best books, communities, YouTube channels, websites etc.

The Simple Path to Wealth, JL Collins

One of the few investment books you'll ever need. There are many great books on investing, but most are technical and long. This book is funny and easy to read, yet profoundly educational.

The Psychology of Money, Morgan Housel

This is an excellent read on the psychological drivers behind our relationship with money. Full of historical anecdotes, offering a great perspective on our trials and tribulations of wealth, greed, and happiness.

Honorable mention – even if not exactly on the topic:

Never Split the Difference, Chris Voss

Have you ever considered how much of life comes down to negotiation? It is one of the most important skills to have, and this is the book to study it.
